INTRODUCTION

This is a genealogy of the descendants of Jacob Cratar; he was born in 1766 and died October 20, 1848 and was buried at Tioga Center, Tioga County, New York.

The kind assistance of Rev. George W. Crater, San Diego, California, of Mrs. Beatrice, Chittenango, New York, of Mrs. George Clinton Crater, Salamanca, New York, of Jay Craytor (now dec'd) Cleveland, Ohio and of Mrs. Joseph Day (now dec'd) Cleveland, Ohio is acknowledged; many others also furnished some information and I wish to thank all for their kind cooperation.

I will be glad to receive information regarding omissions or errors in this genealogy.

Doyle M. Craytor.

TRADITIONS

According to tradition Jacob Cratar (1766-1848) was brought to America from Germany by his father before the Revolutionary War. After the Revolution it is said that his father returned to Germany taking Jacob with him. Jacob is said to have returned to America, marrying a German girl either before or after this second migration. Jacob is supposed to have had at least two brothers but whether these brothers and his father returned to America the tradition does not say. Another tradition has it that Jacob ran away from home because his father would not let him learn to talk English.

HISTORY

Just how much truth there may be in the above traditions we do not know but we do know that Jacob Cratar was a miller and a farmer. Just where he first settled is not known but it may have been New Jersey as it has been a family tradition that his son, Jacob was born in New Jersey; in this connection the census records of 1850 show that Jacob Cratar (1789-1874) was born in New York state while those of 1860 show he was born in Pennsylvania. It is known however that Jacob Cratar sr. moved from Wyoming, Pa. to Mount Pleasant, Wayne Co., Pa. in 1799 and bought a saw-mill and a grist-mill from Jirah Mumford; Goodrich's "History of Wayne County (Pa.)" published in 1856 says that he built these mills but a history of Wayne, Pike and Monroe Counties published in 1886 says that Jirah Mumford built them.

He sold some property in Mount Pleasant Township, Wayne Co., Pa. in 1809 and it was probably at this time that he moved to Tioga Center, Tioga Co., N.Y. where he leased a grist-mill. In 1816 he bought 160 acres in Tioga Twp. from John Avery, paying $1279.25 for it and assuming a mortgage of 45 Pounds. He lived in Tioga Center the balance of his life, died at 82 and is buried in a little private graveyard less than one hundred yards from where his home stood. The public highway now passes over the location of his home.

Jacob Cratar had a large family. John, probably the oldest of his children, was a farmer and lived, died and was buried at Mount Pleasant, (now Pleasant Mount) Pa. Jacob, the next younger, lived in Wayne Co., Pa. for a short time and lived in New York state at least once but most of his life was lived in Ashtabula Co., Ohio; Abraham settled in Kendall Co., Illinois but little is known of him. William and Philip, both successful farmers, lived and died in Tioga Co., N.Y. Conrad moved to Chittenango, N.Y. where he had a mill and later a farm. Ann married William Grimley and lived at Windham Summit, Bradford Co., Pa. Mary (known as Polly) married William Todd and moved to Money Creek, Minn. where their descendants still live. Katherine, who married a man named Cooper, is buried in the private graveyard at Tioga Center, N.Y. Morris died at 15. There was a son, George of whom nothing is known; possibly he died in infancy.

OTHER BRANCHES

There are several other branches of the Crater Family in America and it is likely that most of these branches have descended from different immigrant ancestors.

There were many millers connected with the family of Jacob Greter, who lived at Gratersford, Montgomery Co, Pa. and this might seem to indicate that there was some connection between Jacob Greter and Jacob Cratar. The common use of many of the same Christian names such as Morris, Philip, Conrad, Jacob etc. might indicate that there was some connection between Moritz Crater (1703-1769) of Morris Co., N.J. and Jacob Cratar. However I have been unable to prove any connection between these three families.

SPELLING OF NAME

The English word "crater" and the German word "krater" meaning the mouth of a volcano were taken from a Greek word meaning loving cup or mixing bowl. However this has very little significance as it is evident that the use of the names Cratar, Crater, Creter and Craytor came about as the result of the ideas of the early English speaking settlers on how to spell the German names of Greter, Grater and Graeter.

JACOB CRATAR spelled his name with two a's while the descendants of two of his sons changed from Cratar to Craytor and the others changed from Cratar to Crater.

SOURCES

The original material for this genealogy was obtained from correspondence with various branches of the family, from will and deed records, from old family Bibles, from old headstones, etc. It was collected during 1932-33 and many marriages, births and deaths occurring since are not recorded herein.
